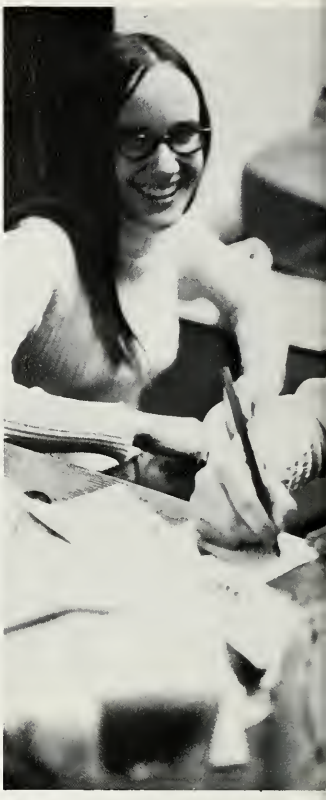
We are a part of everything we touch

Everything we are we owe to something else. Nothing is truly ours, for we are a combination of outside influences, molded to fit society. We are more than just ourselves. We are a part of everything we touch.

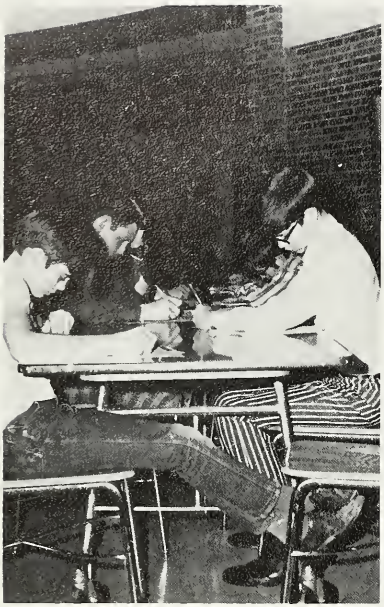
Southern Wells is only a complex of everything it encounters—the students, the teachers, the administration, and the community. The merging personalities of the people involved in Southern Wells, their learning, sharing, and dreaming, make Southern Wells the school it is. And they dictate what SW means to other people.

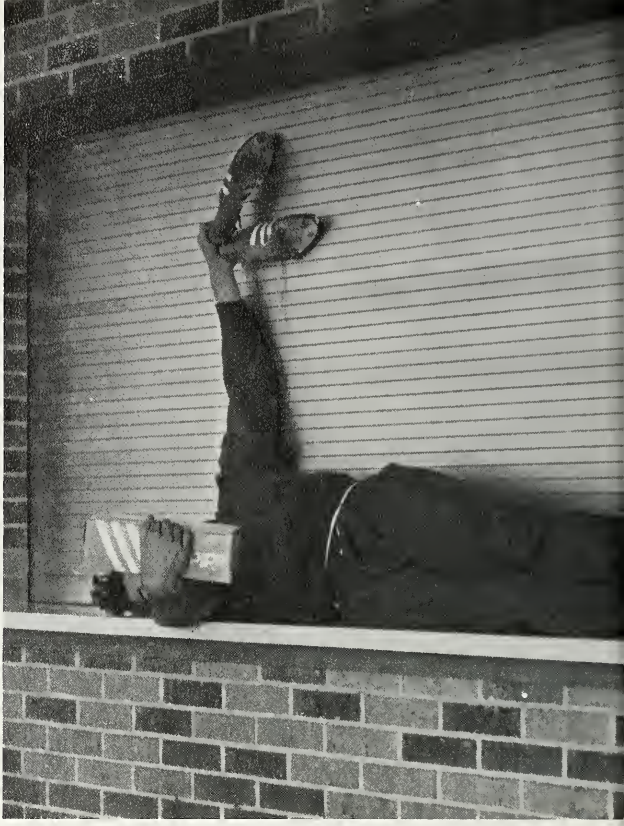
We are a part of our environment. Our life-style is influenced by where we live. Riding mile after weary mile, farming, and adapting to Indiana's seasonal weather are just parts of a Southern Wells student's routine.

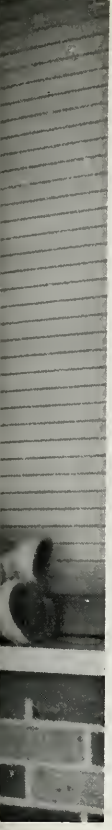
We cannot wander alone. We are always affected by our relationships with other people. We think in terms of how they will accept us and gauge our actions accordingly. During the course of a day, we feel hassled, hurried, and taken advantage of. We try to get away by ourselves. But then, we get so lonely; we long for someone to talk to.

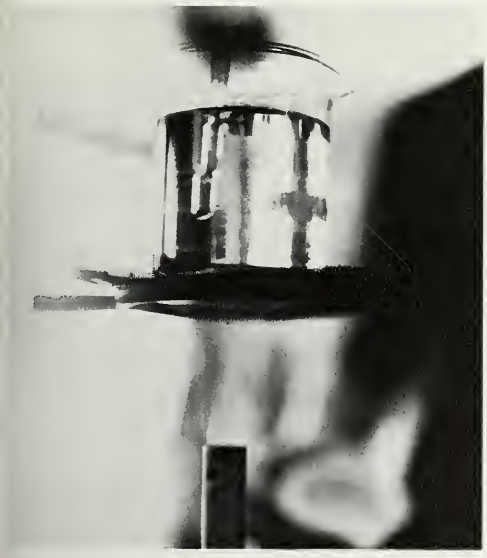


We are shaped according to the fashions and fads of our time. We are bombarded with advertisements. Phrases and slogans become a part of our existence—something that creeps into our speech without our even realizing. Fringed jeans, Charlie Brown shoes, midi-dresses, etc., become a part of our wardrobes because they are the in things. And, of course, we gotta be cool.









School Life

Experimenters vied for special awards and the chance to enter Regional Science Fair

Instead of holding the science fair on a weekday as was customary, the Science Club sponsored the 1972 fair on Saturday, April 8. The Saturday date was chosen for more ease in setting up projects, less interruptions of school, and the opportunity for more people to visit the fair to view the exhibits.

Ordinarily, every student in a high school science course is required to complete a project. This year, students had the choice of entering a science fair project or writing a term paper. Because of this, there were fewer participants in the science fair.

Exhibiting at the fair were junior high students, senior high students, and also the winners of the elementary schools' science fairs. Divisions in which participants could enter projects were both jr. high and sr. high sections of Earth and space science, Math, Engineering, Biology, Physics, and Behavioral and social science.

COOKS—Margaret Sills, Vera Watson, Lela Stanton, Vivian Stinson, Betty Sills.

Answering questions is an essential port of Debby Warner's job at the Caylor-Nickel Clinic.

Introduced at Southern Wells this year, the Interdisciplinary Cooperative Education Program (ICE) teamed with the six year old Cooperative Office Education Program (COE) to provide a comprehensive placement program for Southern Wells. Whereas COE concerned office jobs, ICE provided training in Trades and Industry, Agribusiness, Health Occupations, Distributive Education, and Home Economics.

Limited to seniors, ICE and COE required that a student work at least 15 hours to earn his six credits and take a placement class during school. Supervising the programs were Mrs. Kathryn Foy and Mr. Paul Lieurance. The COE students were also part of the national organization, OEA (Office Education Association).

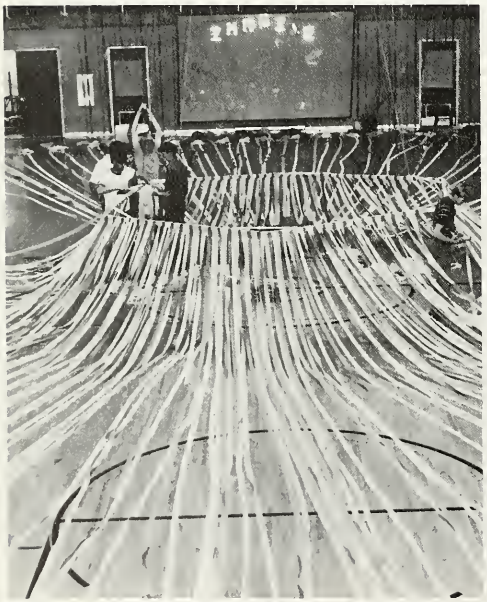
Forest setting was the scene of "Imagine"

"Imagine" was the theme of the 1972 Prom presented by the junior class in the gym at 7:00 p.m. May 13. While the prom-goers ate Swiss steak dinners served by the sophomore girls, Mr. Fred Hartley played organ music. The formal dance began at 9:00 p.m. with music by "The Few". The dance was held in the lower level of the gym, which was decorated to resemble a forest. Decorations included paper ladybugs and bees, and gigantic paper beehives and mushrooms. In addition, the entire gym was adorned with orange and yellow crepe paper streamers. At midnight Jane Seal and Terry Arnold were named Prom Queen and King.



Juniors execute decorating plans for prom night.

After quite a bit of decorating, juniors begin to wonder how much longer completion will take.

Marlene Nusbaumer and King Terry Arnold watch as Debbie Booher crowns Jane Seal prom queen.

Seated at her place of honor, Queen Jane Seal gazes at the prom over which she reigns.

Special events concluded seniors' school days

Teachers try their skills at pancake creativity during the annual Senior Breakfast.

Jerry Hiday assumes administrotive duties during Senior Day.

Seniors discuss the day's schedule and compare their duties.

The 1972 graduating class held its Baccalaureate and Commencement on May 13 in the afternoon and evening. The class chose blue and silver as the class colors and the red rose as the flower. "We're Reaching Out" was voted the class motto.

Reverend Richard Fredrick delivered the Baccalaureate address. After the concert choir sang, Principal William Couch and Mr. Stephen Keffaber, senior sponsor, made the presentation of the Bibles.

Commencement speakers were Salutatorian Steve Myers, Covaledictorians Susan Fisher and Lucinda Pinkerton, Ervin Glass, and Debby Warner. Assisted by Tom Pace, Mr. Couch presented special awards. Mike Williams helped Superintendent Lloyd Biberstine as he presented the diplomas. After receiving his diploma, each senior was given a red rose and a lighted candle. The gym lights were turned off, and the seniors gathered at the end of the gym to sing their senior song, "Reach Out and Touch Somebody's Hand".

Administration directed educational processes

"The only regret we have about this year is that there was never enough time to get done everything we had planned," replied Mr. William Couch when asked about the 1971-72 school year.

After having earlier been abolished, many policies were reestablished. The bells, which had been turned off last year to create a more relaxed atmosphere, were again turned on because students and teachers were becoming lax about promptness to class. Detention homeroom was established. Also, the pass system was reinstituted.

ABOVE: Principal William J. Couch, LuAnn Bailey, and Randy McMillan discuss school functions. In addition to an A.B. degree from Huntington College, Mr. Couch also received M.S. and Ed.S. degrees from Ball State University. BELOW: The school secretaries were Mrs. Marie Rice, Mrs. Patricia Higgins, and Mrs. Sue Harshman.

Superintendent Mr. Lloyd Biberstine checks his agenda for the day. Mr. Biberstine holds a B.S. and an M.S. from Ball State University.

Mr. Ward D. Showalter, Mr. Peter W. Cole, Mr. John Gilbert, and Mr. Jack Wilson served as school board members for 1971-1972. Mr. Showalter served as president, Mr. Cole as vice-president, and Mr. Gilbert as secretary.

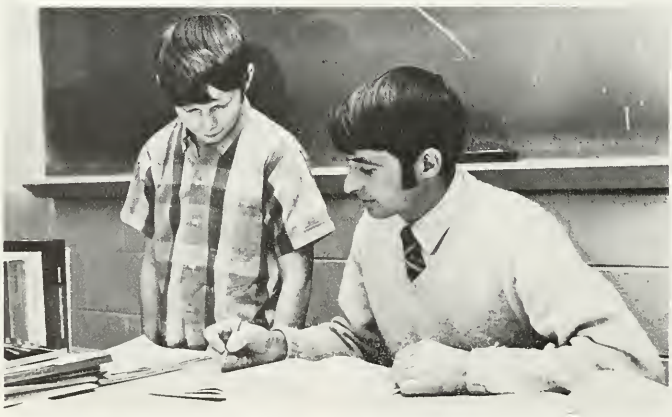
ABOVE: Mr. Richard Hamilton discusses jr. high athletics with Mike Benedict. Mr. Hamilton holds both a B.S. and an M.A. from Ball State University. BELOW: Mrs. Sally Tinkel and Mr. Ed Kershner talk to students about class changes. Mrs. Tinkel has a B.S. degree from Ball State University and Mr. Kershner has a B.S. from Taylor University. Each received an M.S. degree from St. Francis College.

Carol Mowery receives first aid from school nurse, Mrs. Jean Kober. Mrs. Kober graduated from Lutheran Hospital.

Librarian Mrs. Sarah Kindlesparger received her B.S. degree from Ball State University.

Miss Anne Herdrich, French and Spanish teacher, and Debbie Beeks go over an assignment. Miss Herdrich holds both an A.B. and an M.S. from Indiana University.

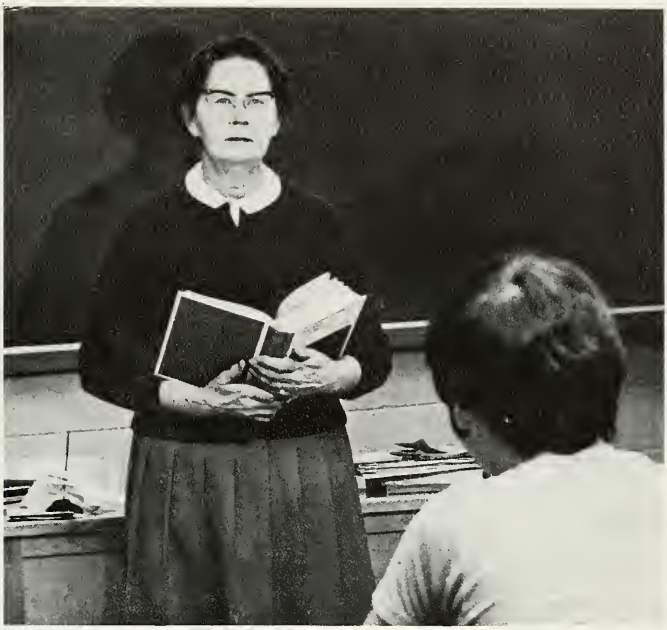
Mini-courses were established



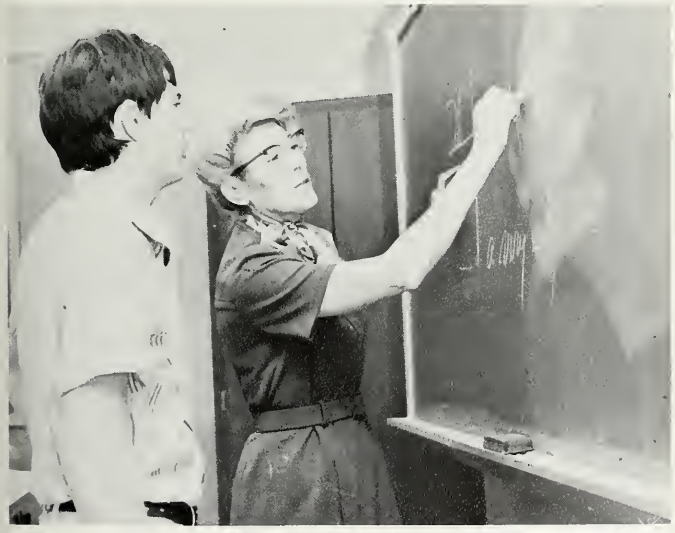
Mr. Michael Gearheart and Duwayne Stacy analyze a sentence's structure. Mr. Gearheart received his B.A. from Ball State University.

Creation of a system of 14 mini-courses replacing the traditional high school English classes was the major change in the 1971-72 curriculum. Designed to fit the students' varied needs and interests, each course lasted nine weeks with students earning one credit for every two mini-courses. Having more of a chance to teach facets of English they most enjoyed, the teachers either used parts of textbooks or designed their own materials for classwork.

Supervising the reading lab was a duty of Mrs. Donna Simpson. Mrs. Simpson was awarded a B.S. and an M.A. from Ball State University.



Reciting poetry to her fourth period English class is Mrs. Ardath Miner. Mrs. Miner graduated from Manchester College with a B.S. degree.



Mrs. Vivian C. LeMaster helps Jerry Mayer diagram a sentence. Mrs. LeMaster holds a B.S. from Huntington College and an M.A. from St. Francis College.

Mr. Alan Pugh and Brenda Towns check the Friden tape. Mr. Pugh was awarded a B.S. degree from Ball State University.

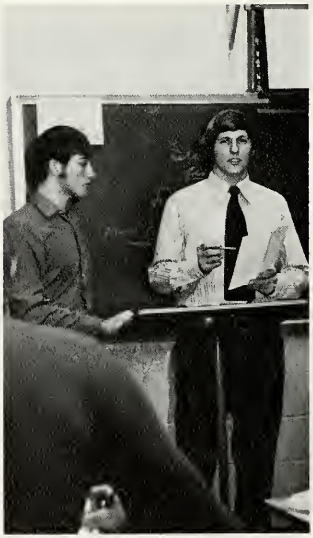
Concepts were stressed

A knowledge of the past is imperative for improvement of the future. With this in mind, social science teachers stressed the learning of basic concepts in government and repeated themes in history, rather than the memorization of places and dates.

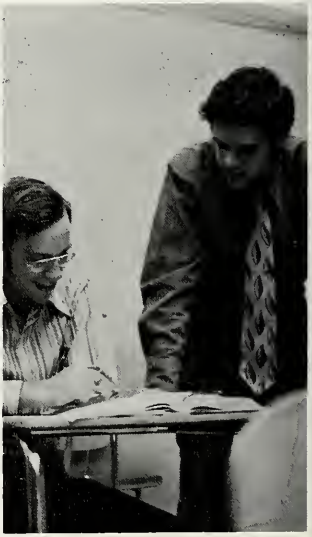
Values and Issues, an informal current events class, invited guest speakers to share ideas. Junior history students were assigned projects in which they interviewed people in labor and management. Term papers, reports, and attendance at a court trial supplemented the students' classroom learning.

Mrs. Sally Mittlestedt, who has a B.S. from Taylor University and an M.A. from Ball State University, supplements class discussion with map study.

Mrs. Nellie Williams explains the Bill of Rights to her government class. Mrs. Williams received a B.S. from Central Normal College and an M.A. from Ball State University.



Mr. James Hotopp explains a test to Bill Moser. Mr. Hotopp holds a B.A. from Earlham College and an M.A.E. from Ball State University.

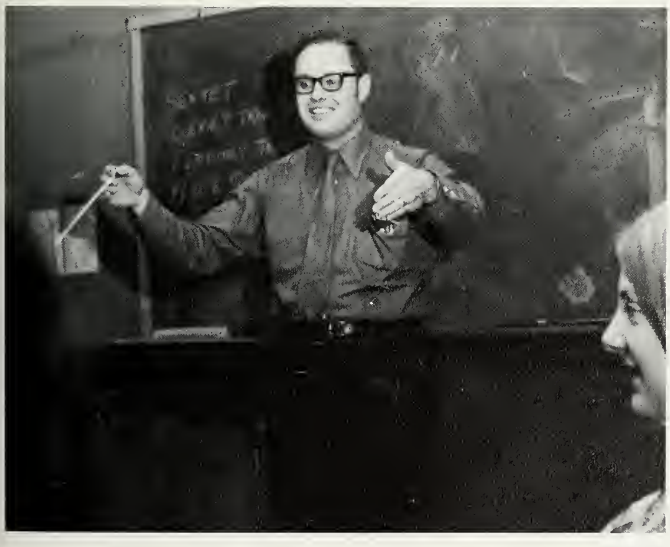


Mr. Jerry Penrod helps Craig Lee with his history. Mr. Penrod has a B.S. and an M.A. from Ball State University.

Mrs. Betty Cline, a graduate of Indiana University with a B.P.S.M., practices with the Freshmen Girls Ensemble.

Observing Barry Buckland is Mr. Alan Daugherty, a graduate of Ball State University with a B.S. degree.

Fine Arts promoted skills

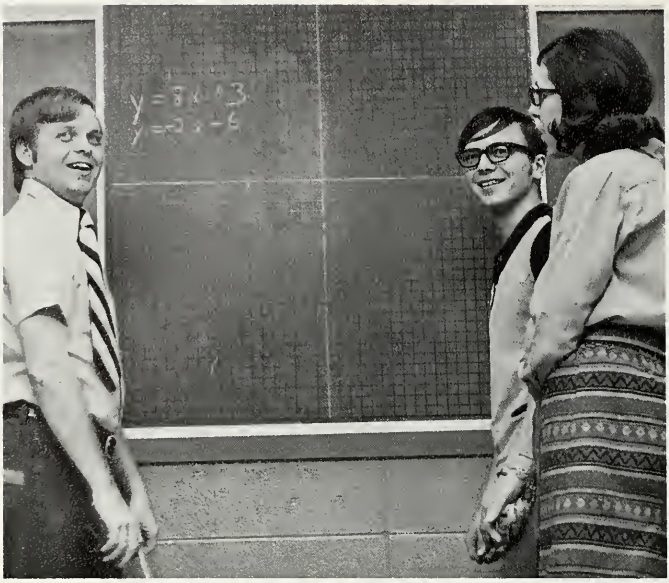


Mr. Thomas McElhaney directs the band. Mr. McElhaney has a Bachelor of Music degree from DePauw University and an M.A. from Ball State University.

Band, choir, and art were in the unique position of being both academic subjects and extracurricular activities. The bulk of student work was done outside of class.

Music students represented SW in vocal and instrumental contests, presented concerts, and performed at community functions. The band provided half-time entertainment at the home football and basketball games.

Besides exhibiting projects in the SW hall's display cases, art students submitted their work in area art contests and shows.



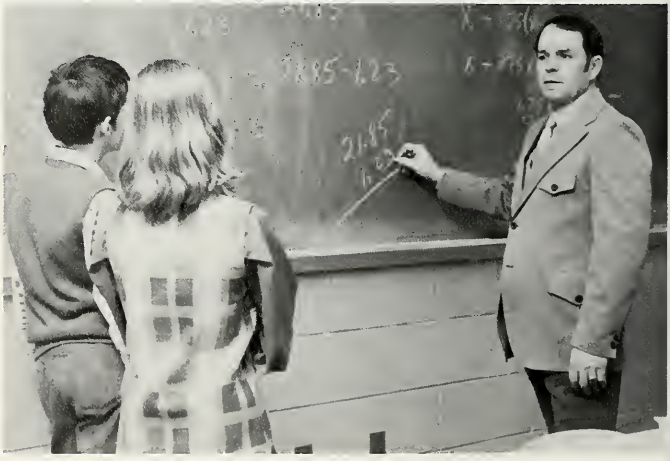
Instructing Janice Nusbaumer and John Lynch on how to graph algebraic equations is Mr. Stephen Keffaber. Mr. Keffaber has a B.S. from Purdue University and an M.S. from the University of Wyoming.

Mr. James Roush helps Jerry Hiday with his experiment. Mr. Roush has a B.S. from Purdue University and an M.S. from Ball State University.

Faculty explained scientific rules

The Math and Science Departments used the subject matter to instill in students a better sense of reasoning.

Science classes utilized a new method of classroom procedures. Being on the Intermediate Science Curriculum Study, junior high students moved at their own paces. Chemistry students began the Chem-Study Program, and biology students went on the Biological Science Curriculum Study. These programs required learning concepts from lab work before actually reading about them in the textbooks. Physics students learned by using common examples, such as finger painting to study color pigments and light and playing with Hot Wheels cars to study acceleration and velocity.

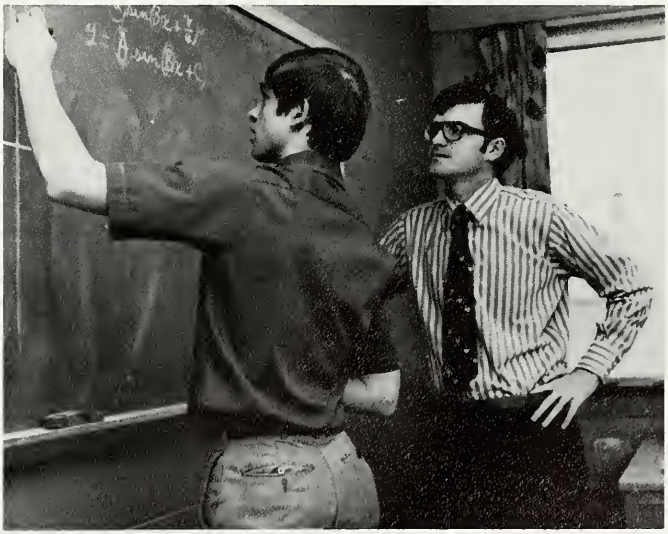


Mr. Lewis Captain demonstrates how to work with decimals. Mr. Captain was awarded a B.S.C.E. from Purdue University and an M.S. Ed. from Ball State University.

ABOVE: Miss Camille Centers and Kim Lovell prepare a demonstration for the class. Miss Centers holds a B.S. degree from Ball State University and an M.A.T. from Michigan State University. BELOW: Explaining the fundamentals of agriculture is Mr. Paul Lieurance, a Purdue University graduate with a B.S.A. degree.

Mr. Larry Sell, a graduate of Huntington College with a B.S. degree, helps Gail Andrews investigate the microscopic world.

St. Francis graduate Mr. Robert Meyer discusses a geometry concept with Vivian Bonham. Mr. Meyer has a B.S. degree.



Steve Gilbert attempts to graph the equation as Ball State University graduate Mr. Larry Garrison watches each step. Mr. Garrison holds a B.S. degree.

Faculty taught application of practical skills

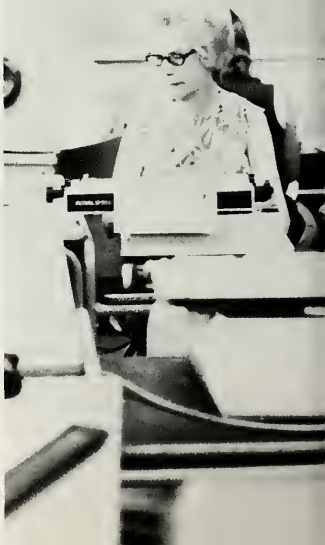
Auto mechanics, metal working, and woodworking were courses offered to industrial arts students. Projects included working on small gas engines, building lamps, and making canoes. All physical education classes participated in the President's Physical Fitness Program.

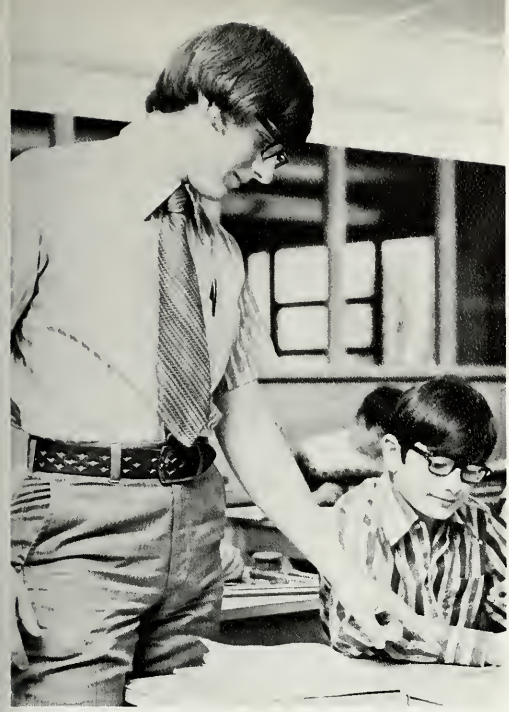
Home economics students studied cooking, sewing, and child care. Sophomore girls completed a course in home nursing as a part of their class. Family living students supervised a nursery school for pre-school children.

Typing, bookkeeping, filing, and operating business machines were learned by business students. Also offered were courses in basic business, business math, and business law. Some seniors chose to go on COE or ICE, in which they attended school half days and worked at a job for credit.

ABOVE: Demonstrating the proper cooking procedure is Mrs. Mary Alice Laymon, who has a B.S. degree from Ball State University. BELOW: Mrs. Patricia Bowdell gives tips to Amy Slaughter on ironing. Mrs. Bawdell received B.S. and M.A. degrees from Ball State University.

ABOVE: Mrs. Karen Smekens, a Ball Stote University graduate with a B.S. degree, watches Delores Driscoll do an exercise on the ten-key. BELOW: Mrs. Kathryn Fay prepares a test. Mrs. Fay holds A.B. and M.A. degrees from Ball State University.





ABOVE: Mr. Dave Geiling instructs Rodney Stinson in mechanical drawing. Mr. Geiling was awarded a B.S. from Ball State University. BELOW: Mr. Ken McFall, a graduate of Ball State University with a B.S. degree, lends assistance to Pam Slusher.

ABOVE: Tammy Hinton and Dalaine Wilkerson record times for Mrs. Dianna Banter. Mrs. Banter was awarded a B.S. degree from Ball State University. BELOW: Mr. Don Kistler assists study hall student, Lisa Carnes, with an assignment. Mr. Kistler graduated from Ball State University with a B.S. degree.

Raider teammates attempt to bring down a persistent foe and regain the football for another touchdown try.

The kick-off of the first football game was the kick-off of the first season for the SW varsity football team. During the game and throughout the season, the Raider fans learned about football by asking the questions, "Where's the ball?" and "What's happening now?" The Raiders experienced many growing pains and ended the season, 0-9.

Key defensive players were Don Stanton and Gary Stroud, ends, Jon Holloway, linebacker, and Jeff Dickey, halfback. Dickey completed 21 of 72 passes (34%), and Rick Murray completed 10 of 17 (59%). Terry Arnold and Jim Fields received over half the completions. Leading the team in interceptions was Arnold. The players with the best rushing averages were Fields and Dickey. Fields, Arnold, and Murray held the team's best kick-off return averages.

While teammates get ready to rebound, Jon Holloway takes aim from the freethrow line.

Varsity finished season 8-13

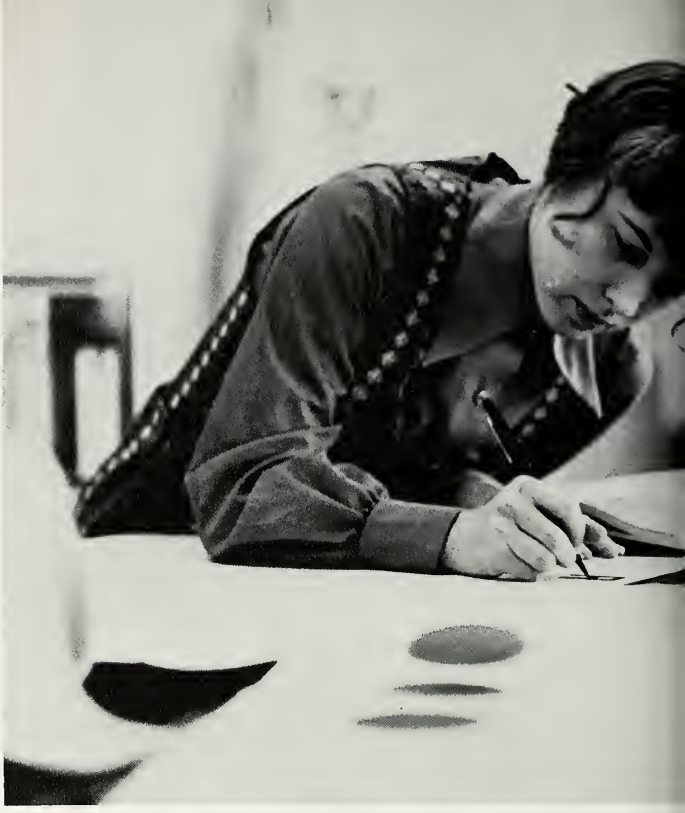
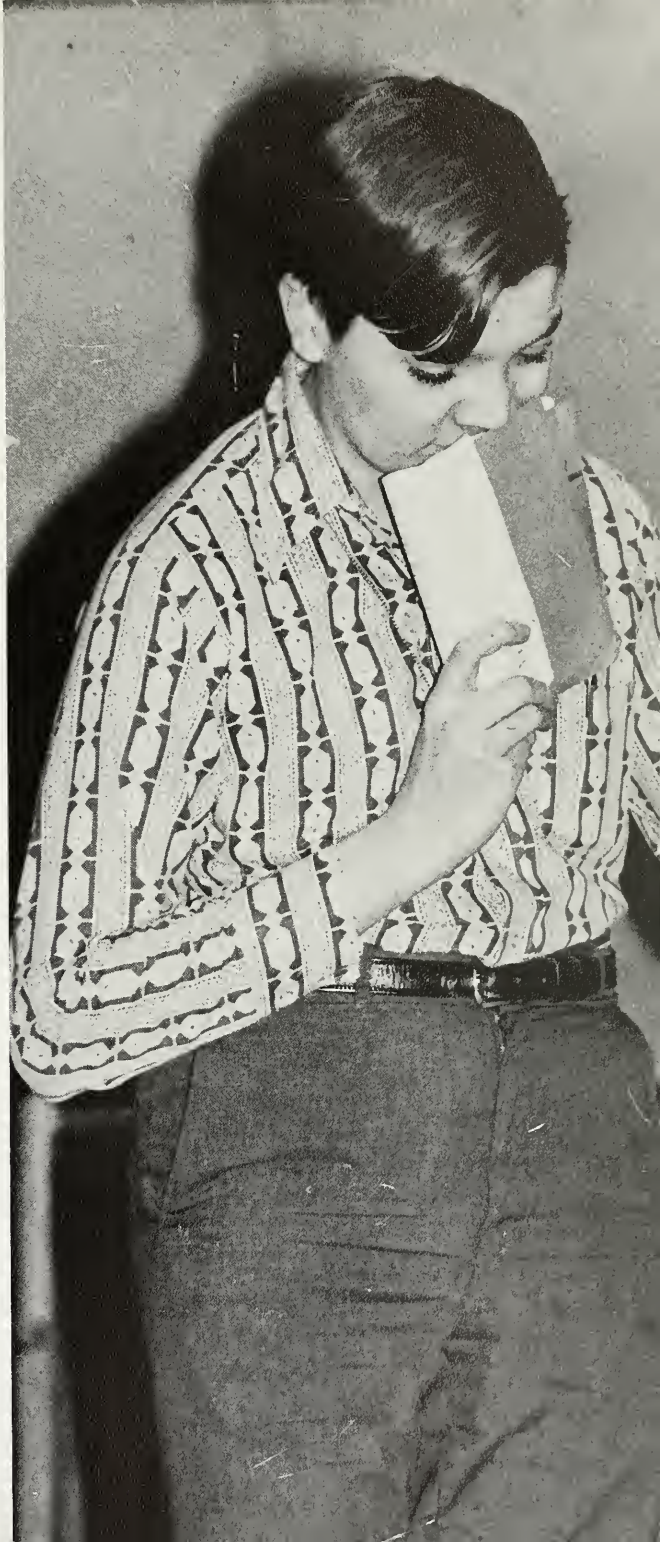
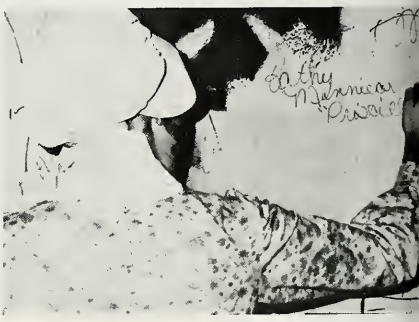
Activities

As a group, we accomplished, but only through our efforts as individuals. With each person playing a role to make the total a success, we learned to accept responsibility. To achieve our goals, we found that we first needed motivation. Then, despite inconveniences, we began to contribute the extras. With our growing involvement, praise and criticism became a part of us. Finally, when the play had been presented, the council plans approved, the science projects judged, the student was either in the height of his glory or at the end of his rope. But regardless of the outcome, we knew we had somehow gained . . . for we are a part of everything we touch.







Without each other our experiences would have been meaningless. We found that necessary sense of belonging in the company of our friends. Laughing and sharing, we came to depend on our peers for honest opinions. Remembering the good times, we can pause to realize that we are, indeed, a part of everything we touch.

Under the direction of Mrs. Ardath Miner, the Southern Wells Drama Club presented a record number of plays during the 1971-72 school year. On November 12 "One Mad Night" was presented. "Bargains in Haircuts", "Have You Had Your Operation Yet?" and "How the Story Grew" were three one-act plays performed before the student body on March 10. The final production staged on April 7 was entitled "Professor, How Could You?" Following the play was a party in honor of the retiring Mrs. Miner given jointly by Drama Club and FTA.

Officers were Karen Rogers, president; Jo Ann Plummer, secretary; and Lee Ann Kellogg, treasurer.

President Connie Lovell was one of ten Health Careers Club members in Indiana chosen to attend the Indiana Youthpower Conference held at Key Largo Inn in Fort Wayne.

History Club visited capital

A field trip to Indianapolis climaxed the History Club's year. While in Indianapolis, the members visited the World War Memorial, the State House, the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument, and the police department. They were also given some free time to shop. Mrs. Sally Mittlestedt, club sponsor, and Ervin Glass, president, directed the club's activities. Other officers were Rob Couch, vice-president, and Vivian Bonham, secretary-treasurer.

Committed to the ideals of citizenship, scholarship, leadership, and service, the Southern Wells chapter of the National Honor Society was composed of 20 senior members at the beginning of the year. Having maintained the necessary B+ grade average and having been approved by the nominating committee, four seniors and fifteen juniors were inducted before an all-school assembly on March 30.

To motivate underclassmen to strive for better grades, the Honor Society sponsored an honor roll tea. Royal blue sweaters were purchased by some members with all members receiving NHS and SW emblems. Three dances were held to cover the organization's expenses.

Language Club studied foreign customs

LANGUAGE CLUB—Miss Herdrich, Makaye Stout, Denise Roush, Andi Mounsey, Sharlene Helms. ROW 2—Jan Inskeep, Kathy VanCamp, Barb Seal, Viv Bonham, Karen Stroud, Karen Rogers. ROW 3—Deborah Kilander, Elaine Tarr, John Lynch, Julie Johnson, Kathy Minniear, Sue Fisher, Guy Studebaker.

Sponsored by Miss Anne Herdrich, the Language Club occupied a large percentage of its meetings with singing songs, putting up bulletin board displays, and utilizing reading material which included French I textbooks, French literature books, and foreign comic books featuring the adventures of Romeo. Language Club members also devoted a great deal of time to introducing eighth graders to the fundamentals of the Spanish and French languages.

Miss Herdrich's home was the scene of a club meeting where club members staged a meal featuring steamed snails as the main course. The club also had taco parties and prepared fondues.

New equipment hastened production

Aided by several new machines delivered during summer vacation, the SW Publications Department sought to maintain the high publication standards of the CHARGER and the RAIDER REVIEW. A welcome relief from manual justification of copy, the Friden typesetters permitted the REVIEW staff to revise the format of the paper. The Strip-printer, used for setting headlines, cut production time and costs considerably and allowed for greater variation of headline size and style. A new six-station light table provided the space and illumination needed for proper pasting-up and proofreading.

The RAIDER REVIEW advanced to first-class status in National Scholastic Press Association ratings received in April. A mark of distinction, an NSPA award for outstanding achievement in a specific area, was earned by SW photographers.

Accompanied by adviser Mr. Alan Pugh, the journalism staff attended the Indiana High School Press Association convention at Franklin College. In ceremonies held during Journalism Day at Ball State University, REVIEW editor Carol Martin received a Sharley B. DeMotte Journalism Scholarship and the RAIDER REVIEW garnered a Sweet 16 award in the school magazine division.

A national honorary society for high school journalists, the SW chapter of Quill and Scroll lists 4 members. The SW Press Association inducted 9 members this year. Press Association officers were CHARGER editor Cindy Pinkerton, president; REVIEW editor Carol Martin, v. president; and Sue Bower, secretary.
